Websites for Irish Small Businesses

Your website should be bringing in customers, not sending them elsewhere

WHAT YOU GET

- A custom design built around your business, not a template pulled off a shelf
- Works properly on phones and tablets — where most people are browsing now
- Loads fast and shows up on Google from the day it goes live
- You can update it yourself without having to ring anyone
- Handed over and supported by someone local who picks up the phone

HOW IT WORKS

1

Discovery Call

A 20-minute chat, no charge. We talk about your business, what you need, and what you don't.

2

Build

I design and build the site. You review it, tell me what you'd change, and we go back and forth until it's right.

3

Launch

Your site goes live. I handle all the technical setup and show you how to use it.

PRICING

Most small business websites start from €800 to €1,500.

The price depends on how many pages you need. After our call I'll give you a fixed quote. No hourly billing. No surprise invoices at the end.

WHY LOCAL MATTERS

A Dublin agency will give you a quote, send a contract, and you might deal with three different people before your site is done. A cheap freelancer abroad might deliver. Or might not.

With me, you're dealing with one person, based nearby, who knows the Midlands. If something needs fixing after launch, I'm a phone call away and I'm not going anywhere.

ABOUT THOMAS

I'm Thomas and I've been building websites for Irish small businesses for over ten years. Most of my clients are in the Midlands: trades, retail, hospitality, professional services. I don't do jargon, I won't disappear after launch, and a conversation costs nothing.
